

Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Sunday 31 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:

Monday mainly cold, dry bright, but snow to south later.

This Evening and Tonight:

Further snow showers affecting some northern and eastern coastal areas giving some accumulations, but most will stay clear and cold with severe frost. Winds light and variable.

Monday:

Mostly dry with sunny spells, just the odd wintry shower near northern and eastern coasts. Sleet and snow may spread to the south later.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:

Cold and unsettled with snow and rain at times in south and east, with some disruptive snow possible over higher ground. Brighter northwest and far north, wintry showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.